

Buen Camino: a lifelong journey

In this keynote, I will share with you my passion for learning and the key insights for sparking your inner light for continuous learning.

The title of this keynote is inspired by a historic pilgrimage through my native Spain, which began centuries ago with Saint James. "Camino" means the way, and I use this term to navigate us through a lifelong learning journey build on upskilling and reskilling.

Buen camino or good way is the universal greeting all pilgrims exchange throughout the journey. It offers a boost of energy to keep going.

Together, we will learn how to craft our own "learning greeting" to propel us on this mission.

The idea behind is to continue improving skills and capabilities by unlearning and relearning, so that we change behavior.

Together, we will explore the critical competencies we all need to develop to stay relevant in the workplace.

This 75-minute keynote includes three 5-minute discussions where participants apply the concepts and model to their organization.

In this inspiring learning session, participants will learn about:

- The future of work and the need for a lifelong learning mindset.
- The "Camino- the Way" as a learning journey, a reflection of life itself, and upskilling and reskilling opportunities it provides.
- How to become responsible of our own learning journey, by telling ourselves the truth. Each individual is responsible of their own personal and professional development.
